

Conquer the Entertainment Industry! Work as Often As You Like on Projects You Love, Enjoying the Income You've Always Wanted!

Dear Frustrated Entertainment Industry Pro,

You may have noticed, but talent just isn't enough these days. There are more talented people than ever in the entertainment industry, and all of them are clamoring for work. Work that could go to you, but rarely does! I'm sorry, but I have some sobering news for you. Talent really doesn't mean much when it comes to getting work in the entertainment industry.

Why Talent Isn't Enough

Talent really only counts AFTER you get the job. Prior to that, it doesn't really matter very much at all! How do I know this, and why should you listen to me?..

I am Jessica Sitomer, The Greenlight Coach, and the author of the one-of-a-kind book "And...Action! Powerful, Proven, and Proactive Strategies to Achieve Success in the Entertainment Industry". For the last twelve years I have been coaching people just like you on how to not only get their foot in the door in the entertainment industry, but how to kick it wide open and change their career forever.

I know what it takes to succeed in this industry because I have done it myself and coached over 1,000 actors, actresses, budding directors, cameramen, makeup artists, and directors - people in virtually every position in the industry, on how to get more work, make more money, and make a name for themselves.

I have exciting news for you if you really love your craft but can't ever seem to find enough work.

Getting more work by creating a reputation for yourself that draws projects to you is never just about talent or hard work. It is about marketing your services effectively, to the right people, the right way, consistently, with enough persistence for it to pay off. And it can start happening right away - if you focus on the right tasks, it can begin to pay off almost immediately.

Is it Possible to Love Marketing Yourself?

If you are like most people, when you read the words "marketing" or "business" you probably think to yourself "But I hate marketing and selling myself - I just want to work!". I understand that feeling, and the good news is that when done properly, using the techniques I have mastered and can coach you on, you will love marketing yourself!

The fact is that you do have talent, you are motivated to succeed, and your artistic creative energy is EXACTLY what is needed to succeed.

Listen... "lucky breaks" don't just happen. It may look that way to the untrained eye, but "lucky breaks" are the result of marketing yourself the right way, but in your own style, in the way that suits you best.

Lucky breaks come to you while you are having fun with it, letting your energy really shine through.

Lucky breaks that kickstart your career will happen to you when you are being creative and enthusiastic about letting the right people know what you do, why you do it, and why they should hire you to do it for their project. And that is exactly what you will learn from my direct coaching during the Greenlight Your Career Bootcamp.

A Direct Path to Success in the Entertainment Industry

You will LIKE marketing yourself when you apply your artistic talent to it. In other words, with the right coaching, you can apply your artistic creative energy to the business and marketing side and become really good at it, and like it!

When you attend my Greenlight Your Career Bootcamp, you will learn how to market yourself in a way that is natural, fun, and effective for you so that you become passionate about it. And when you get passionate about marketing yourself, then you are just inches away from making it BIG in the entertainment industry.
